RHODE ISLAND INDUSTRIES CATALOGUED AND ILLUSTRATED is presented with the view of demonstrating the greatness and variety of the manufacturing interests for which the state is justly famous.

The industrial and commercial growth of Rhode Island is unexcelled in the history of the United States, notwithstanding the fact that in the total value of products, Rhode Island is surpassed by other and larger states. The value of her manufactured goods per capita is larger than any other state in the Union, showing the highest degree of manufacturing development.

The preëminent position of the state as a centre of productive industry is emphasized by the fact that in the City of Providence alone is manufactured one-fifth of the product of the jewelry industry of the United States. Ranked according to the number of spindles employed, Rhode Island has held the second place in cotton manufacture from the beginning of the industry in this country. Under the head of annual production of textiles, worsted goods stand first in value, amounting to about $34,000,000; cotton goods amounting to about $27,000,000; the remainder of textile products, consisting of woolen goods, hosiery, knit goods, etc., amounting to about $19,000,000.

In the precious-metal products Rhode Island stands first as the producer of the finest works of art in gold, silver and bronze. The refining of gold and silver, which is closely allied with the manufacture of jewelry and silverware, forms an important part in the industries of the state.

Third in value is the manufacture of machinery, including the production of engines and boilers, a specialty for which the state has a world-wide reputation.

In the manufacture of fine tools, screws and files Rhode Island is in the front rank. The manufacture of rubber and elastic goods has attained great importance during the last decade, the production of rubber boots and shoes alone amounting to nearly $10,000,000 per annum.

The 4,600 active manufacturing establishments in the state turn out a yearly product of about $185,000,000; the percentage of increase in the number of manufacturing establishments during the past ten years being double the percentage of increase in population.

Rhode Island Industries Catalogued delineates many of the larger manufacturing plants of the state. The Index to Manufacturers as well as the Buyers' Index, both of which will hereafter be corrected and printed monthly in the Providence Board of Trade Journal, should prove of value to those interested in the industrial world.

The Providence Chamber of Commerce is indebted to those manufacturers and public-spirited business men of Rhode Island who, by their generous support, have contributed to the success of this publication.

THE MECHANICAL ACCOUNTANT

Saves half the time and all mental drudgery.

It will add, subtract, multiply and divide by simply pressing the keys.

It adds all the columns at once and is absolutely accurate.

One exclusive feature in this machine is an extra set of dials which show the last item added, thus indicating any mistake made, which can be immediately corrected without interfering with the work.

These dials also keep the place in case of interruption. This machine is built of steel and has no parts that are liable to get out of order. We guarantee it in every respect.

It is used by many of the largest concerns in this country, including Government Offices, Colleges and the St. Louis Exposition. Testimonials furnished.

Machines made in different styles and sizes. If interested, write us. Made by

THERE have been three vital stages of improvements on rotary cloth presses. The original had one presser-bed and ironed the cloth once, on one contact, at a speed of three yards per minute. The second stage of improvement was a machine with two presser beds and ironed the cloth twice on two contacts. The Voelker, the third improvement, has two beds, but each has two distinct concaves, thereby ironing the cloth four times while passing around the cylinder and over two presser beds. The minimum capacity on the heaviest fabric is six yards per minute.
